

Data Governance

MMY understands that as hospitals and their affiliated providers make the transition to value-based reimbursement, there is a vital need for reliable data that measures quality, cost, and productivity across the care continuum. "Data Governance", by definition, is the organization and management of information and data assets across the enterprise. Data is one of any organizations biggest assets, consistency and common understanding is critical to decision making.

Capabilities

- Review and documentation of Current State
- Identification of all data sources and documented to and from locations
- Review and recommendations for structure based on current governance framework
- Decision Rights
- Roles, responsibilities and expectations
- Complete RFI and RFP services based on need
- Archiving versus Migration
- Data Retention and Architecture

Benefits

Making Data Governance part of the existing strategic and operational committees will ensure common understanding and allow the decision-making process to be consistent based on the data available.

We've Done IT Before

MMY maintains expertise in helping clients establish a structure and the requisite organizational standards for data governance, as well as the selection and implementation of technology to support Analytical Reporting from an Enterprise Data Warehouse. Data collected by providers and their networks of care is essential for predicting current and future trends, analyzing requirements, measuring performance, and evaluating outcomes. We guide customers in implementing both the organizational structure and software solutions to support this vital function.
