

Project Prioritization

Every healthcare organization struggles with balancing an ever-increasing list of projects against the strategic, operational, and financial goals of the organization. Selecting projects that support these efforts requires a consistent, objective and methodical approach to ensure that the concerns of all departments, customers, and stakeholders are considered in the project selection and prioritization process.

Capabilities

Our project Prioritization tool is adaptable for use at all levels of the healthcare enterprise.

MMY Project Prioritization

- A repeatable, structured approach to achieve a consensus by balancing the needs of organizational stakeholders and customers
- Ranks projects based on criteria that have been determined to be important to the organization
- Aligns projects with strategic goals of the organization
- Provides a consistent method for the evaluation of options
- Removes emotion from the process
- Quantifies the decision making with a numeric ranking
- Facilitates communication between stakeholders

Benefits

An effective project prioritization methodology defines the framework for the formal approach of using quantitative analysis to aid in the ranking of projects. The ranking of projects using such a methodology is consistent with industry best practice and recommended by the Project Management Institute (PMI).
